

Object Orientation Lab

Instructions

Download the exercise content and open the lab.js file, and attempt as many problems as you can.

The goal is to get through as many questions as you can. The questions will become more difficult as you advance. Some questions will cover topics not taught in class. This is intentional. Use resources online to help you figure out the solutions.

When you have completed the questions. Initialize a git repository called object-orientation-lab and push your work to GitHub.
